BUSY BEES

LOCAL SERVICE DISPATCH

EST. 2026 · CAPE COD, MASSACHUSETTS

CONFIDENTIAL

TEST SITE REVIEW PACKET

The papers in this packet go with the private review page:
busybeesdispatch.com/review

0	This cover sheet
1	Agreement — read first, then reply “I agree”
2	Review Guide — the walkthrough, in plain words
3	Yes / No Checklist — circle as you go
4	Your Notes Sheet — write your finds here

Prepared for: _____

Review code: _____

Date given: _____

PRIVATE REVIEW MATERIALS — PLEASE DO NOT SHARE, COPY, OR POST.

“Give us a buzz.”

Busy Bees · (508) 258-9899 · dispatch@busybeesdispatch.com · busybeesdispatch.com

Busy Bees — Reviewer Agreement

Between: the owner of Busy Bees ("Busy Bees")

And: the reviewer named below ("Reviewer")

Date: the date the Reviewer agrees (recorded with their review code)

Busy Bees is not public yet. Busy Bees is letting the Reviewer see a private preview of the new Busy Bees website ("the Preview") so they can test it and give feedback. In exchange for access and the review pay, the Reviewer agrees to all of the following:

1. Keep it private

- Do not share the review link, the preview link, or the password-free web addresses with anyone.
- Do not post about the Preview publicly — no posts, stories, or comments describing it — until Busy Bees announces it publicly.
- Do not show screenshots or screen recordings to anyone except Busy Bees. (Sending your finished notes, checklist, and problem-spot screenshots back to Busy Bees is expected and allowed.)

2. Do not copy it

- The Preview — its design, layout, wording, prices, fees, service lists, and the way the business works — belongs to Busy Bees.
- The Reviewer will not copy, rebuild, imitate, or use any part of it, for themselves or for anyone else, during the review or after it. This includes building or helping build a similar dispatch or lead service based on it.

3. Feedback

- Everything the Reviewer sends Busy Bees (notes, checklists, screenshots, ideas, suggestions) goes to Busy Bees only, and Busy Bees may use it freely, in any way, forever, without owing anything beyond the review pay below.

4. The pay

- Standard: $30 cash or a $35 gift card for a completed review with notes returned by Friday, November 13, 2026 (+$10 if notes are back by Friday, November 6). Real extra finds pay $5 each (up to $25 per person); one truly exceptional catch pays $20. Busy Bees decides what counts as a real find; the same find reported twice counts once.

- Contractors: instead of the cash or gift card, a contractor's review pay is one free month of Busy Bees membership (a $49 value). If membership is already free for them at the time, the month waits until paid membership starts.
- Pay is made in full, all at once, when the finished notes are checked in — never in pieces.
- Family reviewers (Renea, Kim): the separate family terms sent to them personally apply instead of the standard amounts where they differ.

5. If this agreement is broken

- Breaking Section 1 or Section 2 causes real harm that is hard to measure exactly. The Reviewer agrees that if they break Section 1 or Section 2, they will owe Busy Bees $5,000 — a fair, agreed estimate of the value of the site, its design, and the work in it — and Busy Bees may also pursue any further real damages and legal remedies the law allows.

6. How agreeing works

- The Reviewer agrees by replying "I agree" to the Busy Bees message containing these terms, and/or by tapping "I agree" on the review page pop-up after typing their name and review code. The name, code, and date are recorded with the Busy Bees reviewer tracker.
- The Reviewer's personal review code (example: BEE-01) ties their agreement, their notes, and their pay together.

Reviewer name: _____

Review code: _____

Date agreed: _____

Draft prepared for Busy Bees (Oct 30, 2026). Plain-words by design — it goes to the free-attorney packet for a professional once-over before it is relied on.

Busy Bees — Test Site Review Guide

A walkthrough + checklist for Busy Bees' trusted reviewers

Reading this on paper? This same guide, the Yes/No checklist, and the notes sheet are all on the review page — busybeesdispatch.com/review — where the test site is one tap away. Please don't share that address with anyone.

What you're looking at

Busy Bees is a local service dispatch board for Cape Cod. Homeowners request yard and home services for free. Contractors get a text about the job and only pay a small flat fee if they say yes to it.

The test site — button 2 on the review page — is the test version of the site. Everything in it is pretend — fake customers, fake contractors, pretend texts, pretend payments. Nothing you tap is real, and you can't break anything. Poke everything.

Three things that look like mistakes but aren't:

- Different fees. In the test site, contractor fees run $5 to $100, set by the size of the job — that's the new pricing. The public site (busybeesdispatch.com) still shows the old $25–$35 fees until the new site takes over on November 13. Both are right for now — please don't flag the difference.
- Membership and Premium are pretend. The test site shows contractor membership and a customer "Premium" plan ($20/month after a 30-day free trial). Neither one is for sale yet — both are waiting on a legal review. Judge the wording, not the buying.
- The Dispatcher view is test-only. One link on the test site's home page opens the dispatcher's screen so you can look at it. It's marked as a test link, and it is not part of the real site.

What Busy Bees needs from you: fresh eyes. You're not being tested — the site is. If something confuses you, makes you stop and think, or looks wrong, that's exactly what Busy Bees needs to hear. "I got lost here" is one of the most useful things you can say.

The deal: Busy Bees pays $30 when you've gone through the whole guide and checklist and sent your notes back — your choice: $30 cash, or a $35 gift card. Pay comes in full, all at once when your finished notes are checked in. Finish by Friday, November 13. Finish by Friday, November 6, and that's an extra $10. Find something real that is not on the checklist: $5 for each one (extras top out at $25 per person). One truly exceptional catch earns a $20 bonus on top. (Busy Bees decides what counts as a real find — the same thing found twice counts once.) Write your review code (from the message Busy Bees sent you — like BEE-01) at the top of your notes, so your review gets matched to you.

Reviewing as a contractor? Your pay is different. Regular reviewers get the $30 cash or $35 gift card above. If you're a contractor, you don't get the cash or the gift card — your review pay is one free month of Busy Bees membership (a $49 value) instead. It starts on its own, and if you're already in free membership time, the month banks and waits for you. Everything else works the same for you: the extra $10 for finishing by Friday, November 6, and the find bonuses.

Two codes, two different jobs. Busy Bees uses two code systems that look alike but are not the same thing. BEE codes (like BEE-01) are review codes — one per reviewer. Your BEE code opens the review page, goes at the top of your notes, and ties your review to your review pay. BUZZ codes (like BUZZ-01) are founding codes — one per founding contractor. They go on that contractor's flyers, and the free membership days for an approved recruit credit to that code. A BEE code never earns founding credit, and a BUZZ code never counts as a review. One person can hold one of each — they're kept on two separate lists.

How to start

- The first time you open the review page, a reviewer agreement pops up. Type your name and your review code (from the message Busy Bees sent you — like BEE-01) and tap "I agree". That lets you in, and your device remembers it, so you only do it once.
- Go back to the review page and tap 2 — Open the test site. It opens right here in your browser, on a phone or a computer — Chrome works best (Edge, Firefox, and Safari are fine too).
- If you can, do it on your phone — that's how most people will use the real site.
- The test site's home page is a menu in three groups. Customers — the request flow, your account, a member's own page, the areas page, and the Yard Almanac. For contractors — how job offers work, a pretend job offer, membership, levels & verified, founding codes, and a "Don't see your trade?" page for trades Busy Bees doesn't carry yet. Behind the scenes — the Dispatcher view, the owner's screen (a test link only). The three passes below walk you through one group at a time.
- Jot down the time you start. The notes sheet asks for your start and finish times when you're done — any long breaks, just note them; they don't count against you.

The walkthrough — three passes

Pass 1 — Pretend you're a homeowner

- Start a service request. Pick a town, pick a service, answer the questions one screen at a time.
- When it asks about size, try the map/box tool and the square-foot entry.
- Go all the way to the final confirmation screen. Read it like a stranger would.
- Open Your account — free & premium from the home page. That's the signed-in customer's home: saved details, past requests, one-tap re-requests. The Premium extras are pretend — Premium isn't for sale yet.
- Then look at the Yard Almanac section (yard tips and seasonal guides). It should open right up — no sign-in.

Pass 2 — Pretend you're a contractor

- From the home page, use the For contractors group. Start with Join & how job offers work — it explains the offer text a contractor gets, the flat fee, and what happens if a job falls through: the fee can come back as account credit (credit sits on the account, never expires, and is never paid out as cash).
- Open See a pretend job offer. There are two sample offers: a one-time job and a weekly repeat job. On a repeat job, the fee is paid once per arrangement, never per visit (one arrangement = one customer, one address, one kind of work).
- Tap Accept on one sample and read what happens next. Then go back and tap Decline on the other. Declining is always free and never counts against the contractor.
- Read Membership — your own page and Levels & verified carefully — the checklist below asks about them. "Verified" means a contractor showed Busy Bees some business paperwork — a license, a town business certificate, or insurance — and Busy Bees keeps a copy on file. Customers see that badge as "Paperwork shown." Busy Bees does not run background checks — flag anything that sounds like it does.
- Open Founding codes. It shows an example founding code (BUZZ-01) and explains the founding offer. There is nothing to type in — the test site only explains the codes; it doesn't take one anywhere.
- Open Don't see your trade? — the application process for trades Busy Bees doesn't carry yet (the examples are auto repair and HVAC). A contractor can apply to a waitlist, but no new trade is live, applying is free and promises no jobs, and nothing opens on its own: Busy Bees reviews every application personally, and a trade is normally only designed once three approved contractors offer it in the same area. The screens also explain the back-office AI — it only sorts and counts applications; it never approves anyone, contacts anyone, or adds a trade.

Pass 3 — Sit in the dispatcher's seat

- From the home page, open Dispatcher view in the Behind the scenes group. It's marked as a test link — this screen is not on the real site.

- It's a pretend look at the dispatcher's desk: requests coming in (one waiting for a contractor, one already accepted, one that landed on the dispatcher's desk because every match passed), the contractor list with their levels, and the day's pretend counts — requests in, accepted, fees collected.
- Find the suggestions inbox note. Busy Bees reads every suggestion and decides — nothing on that screen changes anything on its own.
- There are no buttons that approve contractors, and nothing to run or test — just read it and note anything that's confusing.

The checklist — things that must be true

Tick each one off as you confirm it. If anything below is not true anywhere you find it, that's a flag — note it and tell Busy Bees.

Words and numbers

☐ The name is always Busy Bees — both B's capital, no apostrophe. Flag "Busy Bee's" or lowercase versions.

☐ The only phone number anywhere is (508) 258-9899. Flag any other number, anywhere.

☐ There is no "emergency" service and no emergency wording anywhere.

☐ No home address or street address for the owner or the business appears anywhere.

Money rules

☐ Homeowners are never shown a fee and never asked to pay anything.

☐ No screen asks a homeowner for a card or payment details.

☐ Contractors pay only when they accept a job. Declining or ignoring a job is always free.

☐ Fees are flat amounts between $5 and $100 — never a percentage of the job price, never a commission. (One percentage is allowed: jobs that come through a member's own page cost membership plus 10% of the normal flat fee — 10% of the fee, never of the job price.)

Membership and the founding offer

☐ Membership is shown as a choice, never a requirement. Prices: $19/week, $49/month, $490/year.

☐ Nothing says membership — or anything else — gets a contractor jobs sooner or ranks them higher.

☐ Founding offer: a founder who brings in another contractor earns free membership days — 90 days for the first, +30 for each one after — counted when the new contractor is approved.

☐ The offer says free days stop adding once the roster reaches 10 contractors — and that days already earned stay earned.

☐ Founding codes look like BUZZ-01 (they run BUZZ-01 to BUZZ-20) — one person, one code, and the page says referral credit follows the code.

Trust and safety

- ☐ After a contractor accepts a job, contact goes through a masked relay — no real phone numbers are shown to either side.
- ☐ Nothing claims Busy Bees checks licenses, insurance, or backgrounds. (It doesn't — flag anything that sounds like it does.) On customer pages, the paperwork badge reads "Paperwork shown" — that's the honest label for it.
- ☐ Sponsor cards are clearly labeled "Sponsored." In the test site they show up on the Almanac pages — never in the middle of making a request.
- ☐ The pretend job offers show job details only — no customer names, phone numbers, or street addresses before a job is accepted and paid for.
- ☐ The "Don't see your trade?" pages say plainly that applying only joins a waitlist — no new trade is live, no jobs are promised, and Busy Bees decides whether a trade ever opens.

Ease of use

- ☐ Every screen has a way Home and a way Back.
- ☐ One question per screen, and only a few choices at a time — nothing feels crowded.
- ☐ Buttons say what they actually do, in plain words.
- ☐ The site never left you stuck with no obvious next step.

How to send your notes back

For each thing you flag, jot down four things:

- 1. Which part of the site — Customers, For contractors, or Dispatcher
- 2. What screen you were on
- 3. What you tapped or typed
- 4. What you expected vs. what actually happened

A screenshot helps a lot if you can grab one. Send your notes to Busy Bees, however you normally get in touch — a list in a text is perfect.

For writing them up, use the notes page on the review page — it's a readable sheet you can fill in right on your phone as you go. (A plain-text version, notes.txt, is there too if you'd rather.) Either way, put your name and your review code at the top.

> Thank you. This board only works if a regular person can use it without thinking hard. If it worked for you, that matters. If it didn't, that matters more — please say so.

Busy Bees — Yes / No Checklist

Go through the test site with the guide, then answer every line here.

Name: _____ Review code: _____ Date finished: _____

How it works: circle YES if the line is true, NO if it isn't. Every line should be a YES. A NO is not you failing — a NO is exactly what Busy Bees is paying to find. If you circle NO, jot what you saw on your notes sheet.

Words and numbers

1	Everywhere I looked, the name was "Busy Bees" — never "Busy Bee's," never lowercase.	YES / NO
2	The only phone number I saw anywhere was (508) 258-9899.	YES / NO
3	I never saw "emergency" offered as a service or a promise.	YES / NO
4	I never saw a home or street address for the owner or the business.	YES / NO

Money rules

5	As a homeowner, I was never shown a fee.	YES / NO
6	As a homeowner, I was never asked for a card or any payment.	YES / NO
7	As a contractor, declining or ignoring a job cost nothing.	YES / NO
8	Every fee I saw was a flat amount between $5 and $100 — never a percentage of the job price, never a commission. (The one percentage anywhere: a member's own-page bookings cost 10% of the flat fee — of the fee, not of the job price.)	YES / NO

Membership and the founding offer

9	Membership was always shown as a choice, never a requirement.	YES / NO
10	The membership prices were $19/week, $49/month, $490/year.	YES / NO
11	Nothing said paying members get jobs sooner or rank higher.	YES / NO
12	The founding offer said 90 free days for a first referral, +30 for each one after, counted when the new contractor is approved.	YES / NO
13	The founding offer said free days stop adding at 10 contractors — and days already earned stay earned.	YES / NO

14	The founding page showed an example founding code (BUZZ-01), said one person gets one code, and said referral credit follows the code. There was nowhere in the test site to type a code in.	YES / NO

Trust and safety

15	After accepting a job, contact stayed masked — I never saw a real phone number.	YES / NO
16	Nothing claimed Busy Bees checks licenses, insurance, or backgrounds.	YES / NO
17	Sponsor cards were labeled "Sponsored" and never showed up in the middle of making a request.	YES / NO
18	The pretend job offers showed no customer names, phone numbers, or street addresses before a job is accepted and paid for.	YES / NO

Ease of use

19	Every screen had a way Home and a way Back.	YES / NO
20	Each screen asked one thing at a time, with only a few choices.	YES / NO
21	I never got stuck with no obvious next step.	YES / NO

Overall

22	I could use this site on my own, without help.	YES / NO
23	I would trust this site to book a real job.	YES / NO
24	The "Don't see your trade?" pages made it clear that applying only joins a waitlist — no new trade is live, no jobs are promised, and Busy Bees decides whether a trade ever opens.	YES / NO

Done? Send this sheet (or a photo of it) back to Busy Bees with your notes sheet. Thank you — every NO you found makes the real site better.

BUSY BEES — YOUR REVIEW NOTES

Name:
Review code (from the message Busy Bees sent you — like BEE-01):
Date finished:
Phone or computer you used:

YOUR TIME (breaks don't count against you - just be honest)
What time did you start? _____
What time did you finish? _____
Any long breaks in the middle? About how long, total? _____

TEST SITE: busybeesdispatch.com/review
Type it into Chrome, then tap "Open the test site."
Please do not share that link without permission from Busy Bees.

HOW THIS WORKS
Go through the test site following the guide. Tick the checklist as you go.
Anything on the checklist that turns out NOT to be true — and anything else you find — write it below. When you're done, send this file back to Busy Bees (or just copy your notes into a text message).
The deal: $30 cash or a $35 gift card when you finish and send this back by Friday, November 13.
Finish by Friday, November 6 for an extra $10. Extra real finds that aren't on the checklist: $5 each, up to $25. One truly exceptional catch: $20. Pay comes in full, all at once, when your notes are checked in. Contractors: one free month of membership ($49 value) instead of the cash or gift card — it banks if you're already in free time.
Prefer filling this in on your phone? Use the readable notes page instead:
busybeesdispatch.com/review — tap "Notes page."

CHECKLIST ITEMS THAT WERE NOT TRUE

1. Which view (Customer / Contractor / Dispatcher):
   What screen:
   What the checklist said should be true:
   What you actually saw:

2. Which view:
   What screen:
   What the checklist said should be true:
   What you actually saw:

3. Which view:

What screen:
What the checklist said should be true:
What you actually saw:

EXTRA THINGS YOU FOUND (not on the checklist — these earn extra)

1. Which view:
What screen:
What you tapped or typed:
What you expected:
What happened:

2. Which view:
What screen:
What you tapped or typed:
What you expected:
What happened:

3. Which view:
What screen:
What you tapped or typed:
What you expected:
What happened:

ANYTHING THAT CONFUSED YOU
(Confusion counts — it's some of the most useful feedback there is.)

-

OVERALL
Could you use this site on your own, without help? (yes / mostly / no)

Anything else you want to tell Busy Bees: